

Dear FCC Commissioners & Staff:

I am writing in regard to the proposed regulations which seem to limit DSL and broadband access to cable and telephone companies.

Presently I have an independent ISP and the dialup service I have received has been excellent. When I call with a question I get a person and I get answers. When I have had to deal with internet service with a telephone company for my sister the help has not been there and the everyday service is not as good as what I have.

When I decide to step up to a faster service than my present dialup, I certainly would prefer to stay with my same provider.

Sincerely,
